

The impact of Covid-19

59% reported an increase in dementia symptoms during lockdown

75% reported the pandemic has had a negative effect on them noticed a decline in their loved one's cognitive ability as a result of not being able to take part in their usual activities and programmes

The dementia challenge

Around 70,000 New Zealanders are living with dementia today. By 2050, this is expected to be almost 170,000

of us know or have known someone with dementia

By 2050, the total cost of dementia will be around

